

CHEMISTRY AND HEALTH
May 17 - 21, 2008
www.marmacs.org

Queensborough Community College of the City University of New York, Bayside, NY

2008 Middle Atlantic Regional Meeting Computational Chemistry Program May 20, 21, 2008

Title

Computational Chemistry for the Health of the Humanity and the Planet

Invited Speakers

August Calhoun (Dell), Roberto Car (Princeton), Marco Ceruso (City College), Garnet Chan (Cornell), Michael Green (City College), Mark Kobrak (Brooklyn College), Neepta Maitra (Hunter College), Lou Massa (Hunter College),
James Muckerman (BNL), Jose Rodriguez (BNL), Jeff Save (UPenn),
Steven Schwartz (Albert Einstein College), Tamar Schlick (NYU),
Carlos Simmerling (Stony Brook), Mark Tuckerman (NYU)

Organizers and Contact Information

Daqing Gao, Queens borough community college, dgao@qcc.cuny.edu
Seogjoo Jang, Queens College, seogjoo.jang@qc.cuny.edu

The New York Section of the ACS is proud to host the 40th Middle Atlantic Regional Meeting at Queensborough Community College. The campus is located in suburban Bayside, NY in the borough of Queens, only twenty minutes from Manhattan and its attractions.

Submitted abstracts for oral and poster presentations at MARM 2008 are strongly encouraged. A select number of submitted oral presentations will be incorporated into major symposia. All other submitted abstracts, if accepted, will be accommodated in appropriate oral sessions or poster sessions, depending on availability.

Please visit our website at www.marmacs.org for more information.

Look for the Call for Papers in C&EN in late November 2007.